Dear Sir,

On the weekend of April 18-20, my wife and I returned to Singapore for the first time in twelve years.

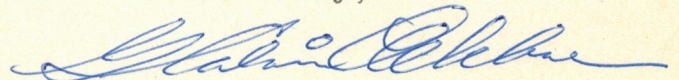

Our itinerary included a visit to the Raffles Hotel, as we had never made the time to do so on previous visits to your fine city. In the late afternoon, we noticed a sign advertising Jazz in the Bar and Billiard Room. We would have three hours to kill before the music would start, but being jazz lovers, we did so.

We took in the High Tea, did some shopping and settled in some front row seats to listen to the group. We are glad we changed our plans and waited for the band as we went on to spend a most enjoyable evening.

Besides playing superior music, the musicians were very accommodating to our requests and carried on a friendly dialogue with us.

We would like you to know that Greg Chako and his two band members are good ambassadors for jazz, good ambassadors for the Raffles Hotel and good ambassadors for Singapore. We look forward to our next visit to Singapore, the Raffles and the Bar and Billiard Room.

Yours Truly,

G. Calvin Allebone

Greg:

Sorry this is so late, but as they say, "better late than never".

This is a copy of the letter that went to Mrs. Jany Chua. Hope it does some good.

Our art exhibition was cancelled, but I don't think we could have afforded you, ~~the~~ let alone your replacement. Just as well, I would have been listening to your music instead of working BEW alle bone
