"The genesis for this record began during COVID when I occupied myself by writing solo arrangements on classical guitar. As COVID dissipated and I became busier with my jazz recording and teaching career in Cincinnati, I stopped playing classical guitar and the arrangements I'd made got put aside.

Then a few years later, one of my fellow teachers at The Oxford Music Academy where I taught, expressed interest in those arrangements. When I shared some with him, he told me that he loved them, and that they really deserved to be heard. That's when the idea for this album began in earnest.

With the help of my treasured team of collaborators, my 1st all-Christmas album has been realized. I hope you'll play this record over-and-over in your house during the holidays, because what I recall from my childhood is hearing these songs throughout the home non-stop, often played by a guitarist. I sincerely hope that this music helps to make your season happy and bright!"
